BELFAST – CAUGHT IN A MOMENT

This beautiful and unusual collection of photographs reveals a modern and vibrant city. Contemporary photographers capture Belfast as they see it in this unique collection. Many of the photographs have never been published and as a result they offer a fresh perspective on the city landscape. The clear reproduction of the photographs make this book a continual delight and it forms a valuable contribution to the social, political and cultural history of Belfast as the city continues to develop.

POWER AND THE GLORY HISTORY OF THE NORTH WEST 200

Alastair McCook

This history of the old favourite, the North West 200 has been updated for the event's 80th anniversary year. Alastair McCook is one of Ireland's finest road-racing photographers. The North West is one of the most prestigious meetings in the UK and Irish racing calendars. Packed with photographs this exciting paperback is a unique history of this popular event from the first race in 1929 right up until 2009. Alastair collected many stories from the riders themselves, the people who knew them and re-discovered the histories of many of the sport's greatest bike makers, some of which were inspirational in their day.

BUILT IN STONE

Various

"Stone is the Canvas for extraordinary skill and craftsmanship today... By its very nature stone is intensely local – reflecting and representing the very geology of a place" – Dawson Stelfox
This fascinating book is an introduction to understanding how stone is used in buildings, how to identify the stone, nature of stone weathering, mapping stone decay, and the current advice on stone repair in buildings. The authoritative descriptions and detailed photography contribute to a comprehensive handbook to the properties, use and upkeep of the buildings which benefit from stone.

LEGENDS OF IRISH BOXING

Barry Flynn

An exciting look at some of the greatest names in Irish boxing, from Barry McGuigan, Wayne McCullough and 'Dave Boy' McAuley to older heroes and some modern Olympic surprises. Many of Ireland's boxers came from backgrounds where sport really did offer an escape route away from the Troubles or poverty to wealth, travel and sometimes celebrity. Many of the boxers in this book represented Ireland and Northern Ireland internationally. For some this would be the pinnacle of their success but for others the adventure was just beginning.

THE LINEN WORKERS

Maurice Leyden

This fascinating account looks at the linen workers – the vital human link in the industry. It's a story which has never been told, one that is gradually fading out of public memory – of the flax growers, the scutchers, the weavers and of course the mill girls. But this is just part of the story – the book also includes many of the old-time rhymes and songs from the period. As folk historian Maurice Leyden reveals, period photographs tell us much about working conditions of the time and the people who were part of the industry.

TRIES HARD – THE STORY OF THE SCHOOLS' CUP

Richard Mulligan

When it comes to rugby and school rugby in particular only one competition matters – the Schools' Cup! Over 20 schools take part in the competition, battling to a nail-biting St Patrick's Day final. The competition has been a popular fixture in Ulster school calendars since the 1870s. This is the only competitive rugby league played by the senior school teams in Northern Ireland. Photographs throughout.

THE STORY OF BELFAST AND ITS SURROUNDINGS

Mary Lowry

This facsimile edition of The Story of Belfast describes the port's history and its surroundings through centuries of development, culminating in a 20th-century city of international renown. The book captures the enthusiasm and industry of the early 20th century, giving the modern reader much to think about. Contemporary Irish landscape and history is also discussed. "The calm serenity of life long ago must have had a pleasant side, for they had time to live then, and time to enjoy living in a way we cannot do now."

PICTURE THE QUIET MAN
Des MacHale

'The Quiet Man' directed by John Ford is undoubtedly one of the most popular Irish films of all time. Based on the story by Maurice Walsh, the film can instantly transport you to an old-time Ireland. This celebration of a film classic is crammed full of photographs of the stars, John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara on set, enjoying a cup of tea and a chat behind the scenes with the locals and simply enjoying the sights with their co-stars and Ford himself.

KEEP HER FLYING – IRELAND'S RALLY HEROES
Richard Young

Rallying is the most popular Motorsport in Ireland. It is easy to see why it appeals to 'Petrolheads'. What's not to like? It is an infectious blend of modified rally cars, mud, speed, mud, fearless drivers, mud, spotlights...did we mention the mud? This celebration of rallying looks at the history of the sport in Ireland, and tells the stories of the big names including Eugene Donnelly, Gareth McHale, Kris Mecke, Colm Murphy and Kevin Lynch and many more. Photographs throughout.

WARTS & ALL – TEN YEARS OF THE GOOD FRIDAY AGREEMENT

John Kennedy

It is safe to say that the twists and turns in the long roads of Government since the Good Friday Agreement have sometimes had to be seen to be believed. Cartoonist John Kennedy casts an ironic eye over the vagaries of Irish politics: the result is a riotous assembly of politicians with one foot on thin ice and the other firmly in their mouth. Political lampoonery is alive and well; John Kennedy's 'quick on the draw' cartoons are just as ready to make us laugh at our politicians' foibles.

IRISH BATTLES – A MILITARY HISTORY OF IRELAND
G.A. Hayes-McCoy

While warfare has been a characteristic of much of Irish history, Irish Battles is the first book to have portrayed the major Irish wars in detail. Illustrated in full colour, and with plans of each battlefield, it presents a military history of Ireland in the form of connected accounts of the major Irish battles, from Clontarf in 1014 to Arklow in 1798.

IRISH FOLK MEDICINE
Patrick Logan

Folk medicine was long practised in Ireland and has still not completely died out. The great mass of the population had no access to a doctor, for many the local wise woman or bonesetter was the only hope.

Dr Patrick Logan traces a comprehensive range of country cures, both for people and animals, practised in Ireland throughout the centuries. The entire book is a striking testimony to human ingenuity, optimism and endurance.

STICKING OUT IN MINNESOTA
Seán Carabini

A young Irish student meets a lovely American girl on a study trip to Ireland: a chance meeting that may not develop any further. Before they know it days have turned into months, and before long they are married in a Las Vegas-style wedding complete with an Elvis impersonator. That is only the start of the adventure! Written with humour, the writer looks at the differences between two countries with a 'special relationship' who somehow speak the same language, but in a completely different way.

JOHN McNALLY - BOXING'S FORGOTTEN HERO
Barry Flynn

Ireland has always been famous for her glovemen. John McNally was the first Irishman to win an Olympic medal for boxing: unlike the many who followed in his footsteps to find fame and fortune his name is now largely forgotten except to the real boxing aficionado. He won silver in the 1952 Helsinki Olympics, but many believe that the medal he should have been awarded was gold. John McNally fought against overwhelming odds: from the mean streets of Belfast to the heights of his sport.

DICTIONARY OF IRISH PLACE NAMES
Adrian Room

This book lists around 3000 place names in Ireland. All the names here are well known. Each entry gives the Irish and English forms of the name and its origin, whether geographical or historical, is described. Many Irish place names have changed over the years as a result of English and Scottish settlers. This book is invaluable to any reader who is curious to find out how many of Ireland's unusual place names came to be.

THE BOARDING HOUSE
Peggy McFeely

The old-fashioned Irish lodging house existed at a time before commuting when people often travelled to work or study all over Ireland. Peggy McFeely describes the landladies and residents of a boarding house in a small Irish country town, including the unforgettable Buttermilk Man, the Spud Man, the Wild Life Boy, the Corsetiere – and the unstoppable Miss Evelyn Tracey. Unexpected starring roles are supplied by a hungry greyhound, daffodils and a vet's thermometer!

ONCE A BROTHER
Patrick C. Power

In the 1940s and 1950s the Irish Christian Brothers dominated male education in many Irish towns. Once A Brother is the autobiographical story of a boy who left his home at 14 to join the Brothers and left 11 years later at the age of 25. In the training houses he was not allowed to read newspapers, listen to the radio or go out alone. Allowed to visit his home after being away for five years, he is a stranger to his own family. A touching true story.

THE RAILWAY HOUSE
Barry Kennerk

The Railway House is a unique account of family life centred on an Irish country railway line. The book focuses on a railway house near an embankment at the end of a short boreen cutting through the esker ridge of the Ballinough Hills. A solitary presence in the surrounding landscape, on either end its gable walls face towards the towns of Tullamore and Clara. In this four-roomed home Kathleen Mary Gaynor was born on 8th April 1914 – this is the story of her family, the trains and the people who worked on them.

BOYS AND GIRLS - COME OUT TO PLAY
Maurice Leyden

Songs and games are an integral part of childhood. Their lyrics are peppered with the rhymes and rhythms of poetry, while their melodies are appealing and memorable. They teach children to sing and dance, and to count and recite the alphabet. Each song has an introduction, music notation and detailed instruction. A timely record of cultural heritage, sheer entertainment for children and adults alike.
